

Master of Applied Health Services

–Professional Stream

A 12-month, interdisciplinary program to develop professional skills, and research capabilities in health services.

- Web-based courses allow for a flexible graduate education that is both accessible and challenging; interactive seminar-style sessions through synchronous learning.
- Hone real-world, in-demand skills and build your professional network through a practicum or capstone project.
- Unlock global career opportunities as you become a sought after expert in health services research.

Courses

- The Canadian Health System
- Determinants of Health
- Advanced Qualitative and Quantitative Methods
- Indigenous Health
- "Big Data" Research and Analytics in Healthcare

smu.ca/mahsr

Saint Mary's
University

Complete your master's degree from a top-ranked Canadian University, delivered online by exceptional faculty across four Canadian universities: Saint Mary's University, University of Prince Edward Island, University of New Brunswick, and Memorial University of Newfoundland.

MAHSR ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

- 4-year undergraduate degree: minimum GPA equivalent to 70%.
- Letter of Intent: how the program will benefit your educational and career goals
- An up-to-date CV
- Proof of English language proficiency (if first language is not English)
- Three academic or professional recommendations

TUITION FEES

Approximately $16,388 (Domestic) / $28,864 (International)

Founded in 1802, Saint Mary's University is known for its international and community collaborations, entrepreneurship and research.

smu.ca/mahsr